COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT SERVICES NOW AVAILABLE ONLINE IN JOHNSON CITY, TN

ASHEVILLE, NC – September 2009 - BUILDERadius, Inc., a leading national provider of community development software to municipal building authorities, has announced the recent adoption of its software package BluePrince® Software and Services for Community Development by the City of Johnson, TN. BluePrince will improve the permitting and inspection process for the Building Inspections Department, Additionally BluePrince will provide code enforcement and GIS capabilities along with online services through BuildingDepartment.com.

BluePrince simplifies the permit clerk's job, enabling them to manage permits and inspections more quickly and efficiently, and streamlines the process for inspectors who can instantly send electronic inspection results direct from the field to the department's database.

TheBuildingDepartment.com website lets contractors apply for building permits, schedule inspections, and receive their inspection results in real-time via Internet-enabled computer, cell phone, or PDA.

"We have a tool that delivers real value to local builders and to building departments of any size by dramatically increasing permitting and inspection efficiencies for any jurisdiction," said Bill Ward, CEO and President of BUILDERadius.

BUILDERadius designers have made BluePrince and BuildingDepartment.com as easy to use as QuickBooks, the popular accounting software designed for non-accountants. The simplicity has paid off as the product moves across the map and into the grateful hands of municipal building authorities and contractors everywhere.

If you have questions about the online contractor services available in Johnson City, contact the Building Inspections Department at (423) 434-6047 or visit www.blueprince.com.
